

How many laws from Brussels?

A Thoreau Report

Object

The purpose of this study was to answer a simple question: what percentage of new legislation is currently of EU origin? While various groups have provided estimates, ranging from a low 43% to a high of 80%, all have relied on unsubstantiated assertion and have failed to publish the evidence on which their claims are based.

This study provides details of all the new legislation introduced in Ireland during 2008 – the most recent year for which full figures are available – so that the results are completely transparent and can be verified.

The study is purely quantitative and no attempt has been made to assess the relative importance of different pieces of legislation, but the information in the lists below may help readers to arrive at their own conclusions.

Methodology

Details of Irish and EU legislation were obtained from the following official websites:

<http://www.irishstatutebook.ie/>

<http://eur-lex.europa.eu/>

The full texts of all the legislation listed in this report are available at one or other of the above sites.

All Irish acts and statutory instruments whose titles gave the impression that they might have an EU origin were examined. Those that were found to be largely or entirely necessitated by, or consequent on, EU legislation were counted as being of EU origin; however, those that contained only passing references to EU legislation were not counted. SIs for which no EU connection could be envisaged were not examined and it is therefore possible that some of those classified as ‘national’ may, in reality, have an EU origin.

EU directives have not been counted in this study as they must be ‘transposed’ into national legislation before becoming law. Including them would therefore have introduced an element of double counting.

EU regulations have been counted as they apply directly in EU member states without any further action. None the less, regulations may require complementary legislation to be introduced at national level: for example, a regulation may prohibit a particular activity but allow member states to set a penalty appropriate for national conditions. In such cases the national legislation is consequent on, but does not duplicate, the EU regulation and both have been counted.

A third category of EU legislation, decisions, were not counted as they tend to be technical measures of a type that would be dealt with by by-laws, licensing, or administrative action at national level.

Findings

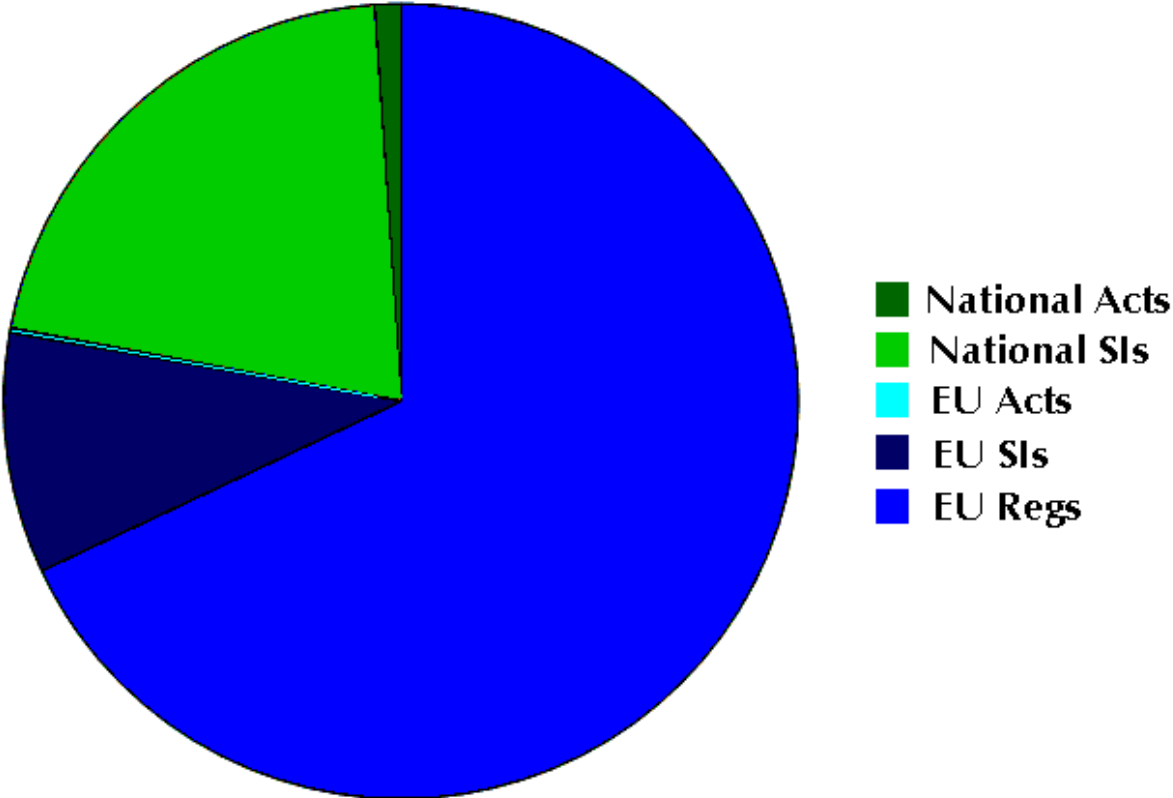

The number of items in each category for 2008 was as follows:

A1	Acts of national origin:	21
A2	Acts of European origin:	4
B1	SIs of national origin:	414
B2	SIs of European origin:	193
C	EU regulations:	1,342
	Total	1,974

For details of the legislation in each category, see the lists below.

The percentage of legislation originating at EU level can be calculated as follows:

$$\begin{aligned} & (A2 + B2 + C) \times 100 / \text{Total} \\ & = (4 + 193 + 1,342) \times 100 / 1,974 \\ & = 77.96\% \end{aligned}$$

Just under 78% of the new legislation introduced during 2008 was of EU origin.
